Dixon Colony on Wis. Lake is Being Planned

TELEGRAPH OFFERS LOTS TO READERS

Remarkable Chance for Subscribers to Secure Country Home

Dixon and vicinity is populated by prosperous and progressive people who know the good things of life, want them, and are able to command them. The community spirit of Dixon people has always been one of the things that made possible the progressive movement, which promoted the prosperity of this city and surrounding territory and which, to a large extent, has made this territory one of a united people in their aims and progressive peace, prosperity, law, order and good government.

The sphere of a newspaper is service. Success of any newspaper is built on service to the community and is predicated in the prosperity and good health of the community. The Dixon Evening Telegraph has had but one aim, that of promoting law, order and good government, as well as peaceful prosperity in this community in order to make it a prosperous one in which to live, do business and enjoy the rights, privileges and responsibilities of the highest activities of American citizenship.

Good Health Essential.

One of the fundamental necessities for the enjoyment of these privileges is good health. Good health is very largely the result of mental, physical activity, wholesome living and a relative amount of work and play. The people of this community, meaning the city of Dixon and its adjacent territory, are in reality one big complete family. For the purpose of furthering the friendly relationship of this big community family, perpetuating traditions promoting general good fellowship and friendliness, it has been the purpose of this newspaper for some time to find one spot that could be used for a community playground. After two or three years of hunting for that spot The Telegraph has found the ideal spot located in northern Wisconsin in Sawyer county, between two of the most beautiful clear water, spring-fed lakes in America.

Choice Lots Secured.

The Evening Telegraph has been able to secure a limited number of choice lots, excellently suited and located for the erection of summer homes. This site is situated between Grindstone and Court Oreilles lakes, two of the larger bodies of water and prominently outstanding in the Wisconsin chain of lakes. The site is located about ten miles from the city of Hayward and is accessible by one of the main travelled Wisconsin state roads and a hard surface, county road, leading directly to the lake front. None of the lots is located more than four blocks from one of the two lakes. The entire tract is covered with second growth timber and provides excellent fishing and hunting with a great deal of big game to be found.

Cheap to Readers.

This beautiful tract of land is being subdivided into ample size lots for homes, cabins or camp sites which are to be offered to the subscribers of the Evening Telegraph at a remarkably reduced cost, which will prevail for a limited time only. The purpose is to establish a Dixon colony in the wonderful camping sites of northern Wisconsin, where a community house will be erected. The Telegraph is able to offer these choice sites to its readers for the sum of $39.50. This price includes a year's subscription to this paper. An individual deed goes with each lot and the deed restricts any individual from taking up more than five of these choice sites. This is an exceptional opportunity for the readers of the Dixon Telegraph to secure a summer home site in the beautiful northern Wisconsin woods, on two of the best lakes in the vacation state, easily accessible on hard surfaced roads at a remarkably low figure.

Wants Copy of Telegraph Semi-Centennial Issue

Attorney Moritz Rosenthal, formerly of Dixon, now of New York City has written The Telegraph seeking a copy of The Telegraph's Semi-Centennial anniversary number, issued about 25 years ago. The Telegraph has none of this issue in stock, and appeals to its readers. If any reader has a copy of that number, which he will part with, he is asked to communicate with this office.

RESPONSES OF GOODFELLOWS ARE RECEIVED

Big-Hearted of Dixon Commence to Make Charity Known

The appeals to the Goodfellows of Dixon is beginning to bear much fruit, and if the big-hearted of the city maintain their responses in the manner in which they started to come into this office yesterday and today it is safe to assume that no child in Dixon will be left cheerless on Christmas Day.

The time is short and more Goodfellows are needed, so come on, Goodfellows, let us know that you are willing to help in this great humanitarian work. Send us your name and assurance that you will help, together with the extent you are willing to aid.

And The Telegraph also wants the names of all the children of the city who will be forgotten on Christmas morning unless some Alias Santa Claus steps into the breach.

DISORDERS IN MINERS' STRIKE IN PENN. TOWN

Woman Killed by Auto Truck; Explosion Wrecks House

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Authorities of Allegheny and Washington counties today are investigating two occurrences in open shop mining camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, near here, last night, one of which resulted in a woman being crushed to death under a truck, and the other an explosion which wrecked the dwelling of a miner. In the latter instance, the miner and his family fled in haste.

The truck plowed into a group of persons, causing the death of Mrs. George Timko, 44, and the injury of another woman, a deputy sheriff and the truck driver.

The explosion took place at Midland Mine, near Canonburg, Washington county. The wrecked house, a company statement said, had been occupied by the family of a union miner, who had not been employed at the mine since it resumed operations under the 1917 wage scale.

Miners claim the driver of the coal company's truck deliberately ran into a crowd and that the explosion was an accident. Company officials assert the truck was stoned, causing the driver to lose control, and that the explosion was malicious.

PAROLE CASES INCREASED BY PROHIBITION

Supervisors Told Juvenile Parole Officer is Needed

Activity and volume of business in the offices of the county parole officer under the prohibition law has increased five times in Lee county, Parole Officer W. H. Winn told the board of supervisors this morning. Before the prohibition law became effective and under the old local option law, the office averaged about ten cases yearly and under the liquor laws of today, more than 50 cases are handled annually.

The state law provides for both an adult and juvenile parole office in Lee county, the officer told the board. He now fills the office of adult parole officer and stated that Judge William L. Leach of the county court would appear before the body at this session, in an appeal for a juvenile probation officer.

Early offenses coming under the duties of the parole officer, consisted largely of larceny cases and these were first offenders. There were very few cases for violation of the liquor laws. Under old local option law, the office averaged about ten cases each year, the officer stated. "Since the prohibition law went into effect and with it the wave of violations, the business of the office has increased to a point where more than 50 cases are handled each year and of this number three-fourths are prohibition law violators. The work in the office has vastly increased as you will see by these figures.

Is Separate Office.

"The juvenile probation officer is a separate and distinct office which is provided for by the statutes, and is one which is apart from the adult office. Judge Leach has indicated to me that such an office is to be created in this county and will appear before this body at this session to explain the needs of such an officer and request the board to fix the compensation."

The subject was not discussed by the board but was referred to the judicial committee with instructions to bring in a report at this session.

Dr. Frank M. Banker of Franklin Grove, coroner of Lee county, presented his regular quarterly report which showed collections amounting to $109.85 made by him from inquests conducted, and which he asked to be permitted to turn into the county treasury. This amount with others which have been turned in by Coroner Banker within the first year of his term in office approximates about $500 which the office has turned in to the county.

To Dismiss Old Case.

A communication was read to the board from State's Attorney Mark C. Keller with reference to a case dating back to the September term of the circuit court in 1910 when a bond forfeiture amounting to $500 occurred in the case of the People vs. Harrison Miller. The letter stated that Miller had served a penitentiary sentence and was penniless and his whereabouts unknown at the present time, the board being requested to dismiss the indictment pending and dispose of the case. The communication was referred to the judicial committee to present a report.

The board convened in their first meeting of the December session yesterday afternoon and listened to the reading of claims paid during the past three months. Bills against the county were referred to their respective committees. At noon today the board recessed until 3 o'clock this afternoon, to permit committees to perfect their reports.

Dixon's Population Estimated 13,000 in New City Directory

The new city directory for Dixon is being distributed today and is one of the most complete which has ever been published. The directory gives some interesting facts concerning the population of Dixon, which has grown materially, according to the figures. The present estimated population of Dixon is 13,000. In 1910 the population was 7,716; in 1920 it rose slowly to 8,191 in Dixon proper and including nearby factory districts it was estimated at 11,000. The new directory shows an estimated growth of 2,900 since the last publication.

CHURCH WOMEN HELP IN ASS'D. CHARITIES WORK

Devote Time and Labor to Humane Work in this Vicinity

The women of the different societies of the churches of Dixon, St. James, South Dixon, Palmyra, etc., have been so generous and loyal in working for the Associated Charities, the organization putting on a drive this week for the benefit of the good work they are accomplishing in Dixon. The women have made many garments, made over good clothing to fit youngsters and elderly people.

One case in particular which has come to attention recently which the Associated Charities has assisted is that of a grandmother who is employed in a restaurant and who is supporting two little grandchildren as best she can. The little folks were forced to be out of school for a time because of lack of clothing, shoes, etc. The Associated Charities when this case was brought to light furnished the shoes and necessary clothing, so that the children could be sent to school and otherwise assisted the elderly grandmother so that she took up her extra burden with a lighter heart, relieved for the time being of the fear that her two little ones would be sent to an institution. Your money, large or small, given to the Associated Charities in their present drive, will assist just such cases as this. Tomorrow we'll tell you a little story of how the Associated Charities through Mrs. McCleary, brought back a man's self respect and health and assisted him in regaining a good position and the earning of money for his little family.

To Dismiss Old Case.

A communication was read to the board from State's Attorney Mark C. Keller with reference to a case dating back to the September term of the circuit court in 1910 when a bond forfeiture amounting to $500 occurred in the case of the People vs. Harrison Miller. The letter stated that Miller had served a penitentiary sentence and was penniless and his whereabouts unknown at the present time, the board being requested to dismiss the indictment pending and dispose of the case. The communication was referred to the judicial committee to present a report.

The board convened in their first meeting of the December session yesterday afternoon and listened to the reading of claims paid during the past three months. Bills against the county were referred to their respective committees. At noon today the board recessed until 3 o'clock this afternoon, to permit committees to perfect their reports.

Mrs. Paul Miller is Victim of Accident

Mrs. Paul Miller, who has been employed in the T. J. Miller music store, is in a serious condition at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Drummond of near Ashton, as a result of being struck by an automobile at the intersection of Galena avenue and Fellows street Monday evening about 6 o'clock as she was crossing the intersection. She is said to have been thrown about 50 feet, and while she sustained no fractured bones, she appears to be suffering from a spinal injury. She was taken to the home of her parents near Ashton, where she is receiving medical attention. Reports at noon today indicated that her condition was unchanged.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelley motor-ed to Rockford to spend the weekend with the latter's sister, who is sick at St. Anthony's hospital.

SKATING RINK IS PROPOSED TO CITY COUNCIL BY GYROS

Would Convert Athletic Field Into Safe and Suitable Rink

Visions of a municipal skating rink minus the dangers of the river, were unfolded at last evening's session of the city council. A committee composed of Dr. L. R. Evans, T. J. Miller, Jr., and Sherwood Dixon of the Gyro club was present and presented the proposition to the council. The committee requested that the city aid financially in putting over the plan, which will provide the skating fun of Dixon and vicinity with a novel rink during the winter months.

Dr. Evans was the spokesman for the Gyros and explained that the committee had received the assurance that the high school athletic field could be used for the site of the rink. He further stated that the plans called for the spraying of the grounds and not the flooding as has been practiced in years past and proven most unsuccessful. The spraying to a thickness of about one inch in freezing weather, it is believed would provide a wonderful skating surface. It is also planned to place the rink under supervision to prevent any rowdism and to have the park electric lighted, making it possible to conduct a winter carnival later in the season.

Meets Approval.

The idea met with the hearty approval of the members of the council who agreed that such a park would not only serve to less on the danger of drowning by skating on the river but would take the junior skaters off the streets and at the same time provide an ideal park for skaters of all ages. The matter is to be taken up at a joint meeting of members of the park board, the city council and Gyro club this afternoon, for final disposition.

The contract for street lighting entered into with the Illinois Northern Utility company was presented to the council last evening, but no action was taken, the matter being laid over until the next meeting.

A resolution was adopted by the council conveying to the Valley Mausoleum company, a deed for certain lots in Oakwood cemetery which are now occupied by the new Oakwood Memorial mausoleum.

WEALTHY YOUTH, LIFE-TERMER, IS GIVEN A PAROLE

Cook Co. Officials Insist They Were Not Given Notice

Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Ira Perry, Jr., son of wealthy parents, given a life sentence in prison in April, 1922, for murder, has been released from the Joliet penitentiary on parole, it was disclosed today.

Police officials and prosecutors, who said young Perry had confessed two murders and about sixty holdups which netted $200,000, said they had received no notice of the parole which was made effective October 31. The victims of both instances were jewelers. Perry pleaded guilty.

A plea for leniency before the sentencing judge brought a life term instead of death. The pardon board first commuted the judge's sentence to the equivalent of a manslaughter conviction, word from Springfield said. The board took the stand that Perry was forced to drive the automobile used by the robbers and was ignorant of their purpose, that he remained outside the jewelry store while the murder was committed and was induced to shoulder the blame because of threats against his family.

Young Psychologist Lands in Jail After Big Bluff

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 9.—(AP)—An experiment in practical physiology turned out disastrously for Fred Hayman. He entered a fruit store last night and with right hand in overcoat pocket outlining a pistol aimed at the clerk, ordered "throw up your hands." Instead the clerk yelled lustily for help which came in the form of a squad of four. When a policeman reached for Hayman's pistol he brought forth a long-barreled bluff pipe.

"I just wanted to see if that kind of a bluff would work," Hayman explained.

But the police say it is up to the judge to deal with the young psychologist.

Mrs. Nora Seaman, who has been caring for Mrs. H. B. Rosier of Henepin avenue for the past two months, has returned to her home.

$160,083,326 More to Be Needed for Coming Year Than for Annum Just Past

Increase Due Largely to Increased Expenses of Post Office Department, Prohibition Enforcement and Aviation

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The expenditures of the federal government for the coming fiscal year were estimated today by President Coolidge at $3,896,207,921, an increase of $160,083,326 over the outlay for the current year.

The bulk of the increase goes to the postal service, which is operating under a new schedule of wages and rates, and to the Veterans Bureau, to meet increasing requirements of the soldier bonus. The Post Office Department alone is allotted $103,308,148 more than during the present year. The Veterans Bureau gets an increase of $53,365,000.

Allotments for other agencies of the government show a number of lesser increases, balanced by about an equal number of decreases.

Maintenance of the army and navy at their present enlisted strength is contemplated under the estimates, but the aviation services are allotted somewhat larger funds for purchases of equipment. The Shipping Board's expenditures show sharply the shrinkage of that agency through sale of lines, while expansion of the government aid policy in building post roads accounts for additional money requirements for the Department of Agriculture. An estimate of $21,940,329 for enforcement of prohibition is contained in the Treasury allotment.

As transmitted to Congress in the annual budget, the President's estimates for the fiscal year 1927, beginning July 1, next, as compared with the amounts appropriated for the same purpose for the present twelve months, follow:

Total, including Postal Service $3,896,207,921 $3,741,787,060

Navy Fund Larger

The Navy's appeal for general replenishment which included recruiting to its full authorized strength of 86,000 men together with slightly larger purchases of aircraft was responsible for a proposed increase of $8,097,052 in that service's appropriation. Three million dollars would be added for navy pay, and $4,110,000 for aviation. The estimate contemplates continuation of all present work active operation of present yards and stations and the laying down of three of the previously authorized eight scout cruisers. No material change was proposed for the Marine Corps.

War Department expenditures show a cut of $4,134,406, much of which is taken up through curtailment in the estimates for rivers and harbors. That item amounts to $58,637,600 compared with $59,277,990 for the present twelve months, the new estimate carrying $10,000,000 for flood control on the Mississippi river. For the army air service the estimate is $18,050,000—an increase of $3,000,000 over 1926—designed to maintain the present status of heavier-than-air craft and assist in purchase of modern planes.

Prohibition Costly.

The Treasury Department is given an increase of $3,855,598, due chiefly to the cost of prohibition enforcement. The Coast Guard's increase was from $20,597,835 to $24,243,140.

The Interior Department suffers a greater cut than any other single agency. Estimates of its needs for next year are $11,288,001 below its present appropriations. Estimates for reclamation projects are reduced by about $1,300,000.

The increase of $103,808,148 for the postal service is based on an expected deficit of $36,000,000 on the year's postal business.

Veterans Bureau requirements under the bonus law are increased from $50,000,000 in the current year to $140,000,000, and for compensation under death or disability provisions from $127,000,000 to $146,800,000. Conditions point to the need of an additional $106,000,000 for the bonus before the year 1927 is over.

Although the Department of Justice has $161,205 added to its estimated needs as compared with last year, the itemized statement discloses a reduction from $2,177,500 to $2,000,000 for "detection and prosecution of crime" and from $228,000 to $135,000 for enforcement of anti-trust laws. The appropriation of $1,000,000 available this year for prosecution of war frauds is entirely omitted for 1927.

Expect Increase in Tire Prices by First of Year

It is expected the rubber companies will announce another upward revision of tire prices soon, to be placed in effect January 1. Although the exact percentage of increase has not been definitely decided upon, reports within the trade indicate that advances of from 15 to 30 per cent are likely.

BUDGET FOR COMING YEAR TO CONGRESS

President Calls Attention to Needs of the Government

Washington, Dec. 9.—(By the Associated Press).—President Coolidge informed Congress in his annual budget message today that the minimum cost of running the government had been about reached, and that the normal expansion of a growing nation would henceforth involve added expenditure to keep the government machinery in motion.

The budget estimates, transmitted with the message, reflected the continuing efforts at economy. Mr. Coolidge said, adding that on the basis of the calculations a surplus of $30,307,000 was indicated for the fiscal year 1927. He expects a surplus of $32,041,756 for the year ending next June 30 although a year ago it was estimated that the surplus this year would exceed $373,000,000.

The Executive made informal recommendations for reduction of the taxes; suggested a necessity for keeping the airplane industry alive as well as replenishing and refitting government air service equipment and developing an "orderly policy" in the air; and declared that "every available resource of the government will be employed in prohibition enforcement." He thought the total estimates of $42,447,000 for the combined air services should accomplish the end sought.

Tax Cut Goes Far.

Concerning the tax bill, already drawn by the House Ways and Means Committee, the President said it had gone somewhat further than his judgment dictated with respect to amounts and exemptions but he praised the non-partisan character of the work done and urged that the same spirit be carried through in consideration of the bill by House and Senate. Competition between government and the airplane industry in not contemplated. Mr. Coolidge said in referring further to the air transportation question. He felt that with the appropriations already made and the estimates carried in this budget, the industry which he said should be kept alive for a national emergency, would be assured of a normal and proper growth.

Returning to the fiscal affairs of the government, the President expressed hope that further reduction in taxes now proposed would serve as a fresh stimulant to general business. He believed it would produce fresh tax sources and increase, or at least maintain the government's revenue requirements without the higher tax levies of the present day.

The outlook for the coming fiscal year, 1927, is most favorable," Mr. Coolidge continued. "For that year it is estimated that the ordinary receipts will be $3,254,530,000 and expenditures $3,494,222,000. This indicates a surplus of $239,607,000.

Economy Bears Fruit.

"The outlook for 1926 and 1927 shows clearly that the united effort of the executive and legislative branches of the government for economy in federal expenditures is bearing further fruit. In the last four fiscal years (Continued on Page 8.)

German Editor Winner of "Stab in the Back" Suit

Munich, Germany, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Paul Cossmann, editor of the South German Monthly Review, has won his "stab in the back" slander suit against Martin Gruber, editor of the Munich Post, a socialist paper. The verdict in effect upholds a statement some months ago in Herr Cossmann's paper that socialist propaganda in Germany caused the collapse of the German army in the World War.

Cossmann sued when the Munich Post characterized this assertion as a falsification and termed him, as the editor, as a "concocter of political poison." The verdict directs Gruber to pay a fine of 3,000 marks with the alternative of 30 days imprisonment. The case attracted wide attention. Among the military and naval authorities and to the stand were Admiral Von Trotha, former chief of the admiralty staff and General Groener, Ludendorff's successor near the close of the war. Professor Delbrueck, German historian and political economist, also testified.

KANE CO. DAIRY MEN DIVIDED ON TEST QUESTION

Fight for T. B. Testing Assumes New Aspect Today

Geneva, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Farmers opposed to the tuberculin test of cattle yesterday called upon the Kane county board of supervisors to discharge the county veterinarian as insurance against testing of their herds. The board complied with the demand on the grounds that the officer had been named to please the farmers and if they didn't want him now, the money might as well be saved.

Today farmers who believe in the test appeared before the board with a demand that the veterinarian be kept. They thought advertising crowding out of the discharge of the veterinarian would be most damaging. They said also that it was nonsense to think that the discharge of a veterinarian would operate to balk the operation of the tuberculin test law. This law provided that all cattle shall be submitted to the test if 75 percent of the farmers of a county ask for it.

ANGLO-FRANCO AGREEMENT ON HELP REACHED

To be Submitted to Other Nations for Their Sanction

Geneva, Dec. 9.—(AP)—England and France today reached an accord concerning study of the problem of mutual assistance in war time, in connection with the preparation for the international disarmament conference.

After a secret meeting of the League of Nations council, M. Paul-Boncour of France announced that Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia had been appointed to draft a formula covering the question which divided the British and French. He explained that the study of mutual assistance would be more flexible than originally proposed by the French, thus intimating that a compromise had been reached.

The text of five questions to be submitted to the various governments, including the United States, preliminary to convocation of the international conference for control of the private manufacture of arms were agreed upon by the council today.

The first asks the opinion of each government as to the nature and extent of the "grave objections" to the private manufacture of arms mentioned in the League covenant.

The other ask whether the country's constitution presents obstacles to the conclusion of an international agreement regarding private manufacture, and if so, their nature.

Information is also requested as to that international administrative or legislative measures exist on the subject.

TAX-REDUCTION BILL IS GIVEN ENDORSEMENTS

Leaders of Republican and Democratic Parties Urge Passage

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Facing a complete right of way, the tax reduction bill was before the house again today for general debate. The non-partisan measure, carrying a $325,000,000 tax cut, was launched in that body on its legislative journey with the good wishes of President Coolidge and of leaders of both parties on the ways and means committee which framed it.

Representative Green, republican, Iowa, chairman of the ways and means committee, in opening the debate, lauded provisions of the bill and told the house he opposed any attempt to increase the total amount of reduction provided.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democratic on the committee, drew applause from both sides when he gave his endorsements to the bill.

In urging its passage, he centered his remarks on Secretary Mellon and his democratic colleagues on the committee, Representative Rainey of Illinois and Hull of Tennessee, who have opposed the increase provided in personal exemptions.

By endorsing the bill, Mr. Garner declared, President Coolidge showed that he was not in harmony with Secretary Mellon's tax views, "for this is not Secretary Mellon's bill—it does not include his recommendations."

CANARY IN CAGE SAVED FREEPORT FOLKS FROM FIRE

Awakened Sleepers in Time for Them to Check Flames

Freeport, Dec. 8.—Fluttering of a canary's wings against its cage, which aroused Mrs. Robert Botsford early this morning, probably saved the August Dilly building, Stephenson street, from destruction by fire.

Hearing the bird Mrs. Botsford awoke and discovered smoke in the apartment of the Dilly building. She aroused members of the other five apartments on the third floor and the fire department was summoned.

Flames were shooting up a partition in the building when Mrs. Botsford was aroused. After battling the stubborn blaze for more than an hour the fire department succeeded in putting out the flames. The total loss was estimated at $1500 and the fire was believed to have started from a defective fuse.

The ground floor of the building is occupied by stores while the second and third floors are devoted to apartments.

Muscatine, Ia., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A Muscatine man, whose name the authorities declined to disclose, was victimized by a clairvoyant for $4200, it was revealed here today. The clairvoyant put $800 in an envelope with the victim's money and gave it to the latter to put in a safety deposit box. A few days later the victim opened it and found the usual black slips of paper.

A WISH—
Mine be a cot beside the hill;
A bee-hive's hum shall soothe my ear;
A willow brook, that turns the mill,
With many a fall shall linger near.

The swallow, oft, beneath my thatch,
Shall twitter from her clay-built nest;
Oft shall a pilgrim lift the latch,
And share my meal, a welcome guest.

Around my ley'd porch shall spring
Each fragrant flower that drinks the dew;
And Lucy, at her wheel, shall sing
In russet gown and apron blue.

Where first our marriage vows were given,
With merry peals shall swell the breeze,
And point with taper spire to heav-

But here is something we all can do! Believe in the goodness of others and show them that we do. If we all do this, many wrongs will right themselves, and the professional reformers can go out of business.

Beautiful Wedding Celebrated Saturday

Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Lutheran parsonage in Ashton occurred the marriage of two of Ashton's most popular young people. Miss Marie C. Melhausen, daughter of the late Frank Melhausen, and Mrs. Anna Melhausen, who became the bride of William H. Smith, of Reynolds township, is an estimable young woman, well known and esteemed for her charming qualities. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and is highly regarded by his friends and acquaintances. Rev. Henry Poelsch, pastor of the Lutheran church of Ashton, performed the ceremony service, using the impressive ring service.

The bride was beautifully attired in a charming frock of peach georgette and silk, trimmed in tiny petals of the material. She wore silver slippers and carried a bride's bouquet of bride's roses, white carnations and baby's breath. The couple was unattended. The bridegroom wore a suit of powder blue.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Smith left on a long honeymoon trip, going first to Chicago and Zion city. They will spend the winter months on the west coast. The bride's traveling costume was of grey harem set with hat and slippers to match, with a handsome, heavy wrap.

Saturday also being the bride's birthday a six o'clock birthday and wedding dinner with appropriate and lovely floral decorations, was served at the home of the bride. The many friends and relatives of the couple wish them much happiness in their future life.

William H. Smith has rented the farm of Miss Emma Hougren, of Amboy, Ill., where the newlyweds will be glad to welcome their many friends.

Practical Club Held Meeting

The Practical Club with a large attendance, were entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Weiss. Following the usual business session a very interesting paper was read by Mrs. Clinton Rhodes on "The Radio." An old lady sits in her arm chair reviewing the accomplishments of her lifetime and decides that radio is the most wonderful of these.

"Then she lets her imagination have full play as to its future possibilities and pictured for us marvelous things yet to come. The paper was well given and proved very interesting.

The Membership Roll Call was answered with current events and following these Miss Edith Slothower played Hungarian by Bach and as an encore Playing Tag by Loeschorn. Her technique and natural ability were much enjoyed by all present. Last but not least were the delicious refreshments served by the hostess and after the usual pleasant hour of social chat the guests departed having spent a pleasant afternoon.

"Likewise there is in the heart of every man something of the knight errant and the gentleman, something of the devil, and something of the cat," says Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute.

"I've never met a woman whom I honestly could call a saint, or one who could be classified as a perfect devil.

But it is well in dealing with our fellow men to realize that we are dealing with a composite rather than a flat type.

And since everyone has a good side, we might just as well appeal to that as assume that we alone represent the cause of goodness and right.

If we believe our neighbors are fine and splendid, and treat them as if we thought so, we may make mistakes once in a while, but in the end, we will find that this makes our course through life much smoother and pleasanter than if we make distinctions in our mind, and play up to false characterizations.

If we tell a child he is bad often enough, and treat him as if we believe he is bad, we soon can convince him that he is. And such is the human psychology that eventually he will become bad.

If we take a bad child and show him that we have confidence in him, make him feel he depends on him, and thus build up his self-esteem and his sense of responsibility, we can make a good child of him.

In Woman's Case.

The woman who is loved and surrounded by admiration acquires a poise and assurance that makes it possible for her to develop her charming and beautiful side.

The woman who is nagged at and belittled, who has to fight every inch of the way, is not to be blamed if she is a shrewish, unlovely woman, ever on the defensive.

Very few of us have a chance to be constructive in a large way. [Much as we would like to do something specduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. W. W. Marshall, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dixon. Rev. Marshall gave a message which was full of inspiration and enthusiasm from the text Phil. 3:13, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." At the close of the meeting all joined in singing "God be with you till we meet again." About 80 were present to enjoy the time of fellowship together.

DREAM OF THE FUTURE.

Ask any visitor from Europe what his outstanding impression of American life is, and the chances are he will reply that we all seem to be in such a tremendous hurry.

Foreigners have been saying this of us for many years, and lately we've been beginning to realize it ourselves.

Now, in itself, it isn't a criticism. When you have a lot to do you have to hurry to get it all done. Mexico is a fine example of a country that refuses to move faster than a walk.

And yet—wouldn't it be a fine thing if some day we could sit down and try to figure out just exactly what it is that we're in such a hurry about?

Underneath it all, of course, lies the fact that we are a nation of idealists. Sometimes we don't act much like it, and probably we don't suspect it most of the time. But it's true.

For what other reason did we spread out from Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast in less than 100 years, leveling mountains, blotting out forests and blocking streams in our passage? Why does every city, from the smallest to the largest, fight unceasingly to add population, industries and fine buildings to its record? Why have we always so bitterly resented any insinuation that America is not the best place to live in on all the earth?

Well, perhaps all of that was partly due to a desire to make more money. But only partly. Ours is a material civilization, but anyone who attempts to explain its rise solely by material means is blind.

For we Americans have a common dream—the greatest dream ever given to a people anywhere. It was born on the heights of Bunker Hill and in the cold huts of Valley Forge, nurtured in the covered wagons that swept across the western plains, carefully tended in the log cabins of the wilderness and brought to flower in the clamor of our mills and the roar of our railways.

What is it, this dream that leads us on?

Isn't it, at bottom, the dream of what America shall be some day; the dream of a land where there is enough for all, where no man grinds his soul out in bitter toil, where justice and truth and freedom are the common privileges of all and poverty is unknown?

To be sure, we haven't attained it yet. And sometimes it seems a long way off.

But it will come. There can be no doubt of it. It has been back of all our struggles. It has animated all our patriots. It is what our flag means when we see it fluttering against the sunlight; what our battleships mean as they steam out through the Golden Gate; what the bugles sing on the heights at Arlington, what the wind whispers as it drifts the Indian summer haze past Lincoln's tomb at Springfield.

And that's why we're in a hurry. Just so that we never lose sight of our goal, let no one criticize our speed.

HE NEEDN'T WORRY.

Martin Durkin, Chicago murderer, is reported ready to give himself up provided he is given "a fair and impartial trial."

By this does he mean a trial where defense attorneys will be permitted to interpose every delay known to the legal profession? Or, perhaps, a trial where the state will courteously agree not to combat any plea of temporary, partial, sporadic or intermittent insanity that the defense might raise?

Taking it by and large, the defendant in a criminal trial in America gets a fair trial and then some. Durkin needn't worry. No other country in the world is as lenient with its criminals, after arrest and before sentence, as we are.

NO DANGER.

And now the Communist party in America plans to begin "teaching Communism" to all who care to listen.

That's fair enough. This is a free country.

There'll be no danger of the doctrine spreading very far—unless, of course, some government or state official is as enough to order a few more raids. If the long-whiskered gentlemen are left strictly alone, however, nobody needs to worry.

COASTING.

Put a couple of inches of snow on a street and give a boy a sled and he'll be happy for the rest of the day.

But if the street happens to be in a city he may also be in the hospital for the rest of the day—and for many days thereafter.

It's too bad, but it's a fact that the city child has no business coasting unless he goes to the country or to some park where streets are set aside for the purpose. The main streets are too dangerous.

ANOTHER ONE.

And now another lady steps into court and falters out that a certain rich man has treated her foully; has led her to love him and then decamped. Has, in fine, broken her heart so painfully that only much good coin can assuage the hurt.

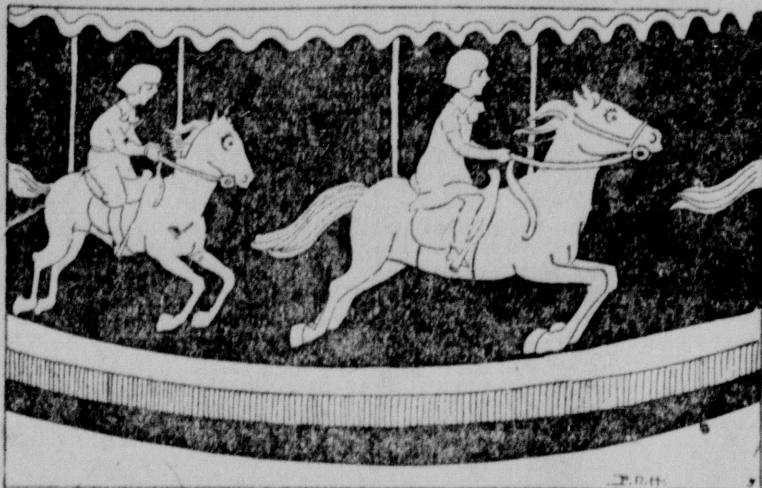

Probably the law under which breach of promise suits are filed is a good law to keep on the books. But at least we can keep from being deceived as to the true nature of most of the suits that are filed.

Consider, if you can, a woman worthy of the name seeking money to comfort her for an outrage to her finest feelings. And then, having considered, ask yourself if the average breach of promise suit is more akin to justice or to blackmail.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 31—HANKA AND KUBA TAKE THE TWINS FOR A RIDE

In a few minutes each was seated on a spirited wooden steed.

Nancy and Nick stood still while the picture people danced around them—the girls in their gaily embroidered dresses and aprons and clumsy boots—and the young men in their funny white waists with huge puffed sleeves, and feathers in their hats.

The children could not understand a word of the song they sang, as it was in Russian, but it sounded nice and friendly and they liked it.

When the dancing had stopped, one of the girls said, quite plainly so the Twins could understand, "I am going to call my little brother and sister to take you around. My father owns the merry-go-round, and all the nice little fat donkeys on which you may ride, so it won't cost you anything. Would you like that?"

"Oh, yes indeed, thank you!" said Nick politely. "It is very nice here."

The girl smiled and patted their heads, then putting her hand to her mouth, she called out shrilly, "Oh, Hanka, Oh, Kuba! Come here!"

Instantly there was a patter of feet, or rather a clatter of heavy little boots, for the little peasant children were dressed precisely like their elders—and a little boy and girl came racing along, shouting, "What is it, Yuzka? What do you want us for?"

"Here are two little visitors," said Yuzka, for that was the elder sister's name. "Treat them kindly for they have come a long distance to our fair. They are not of our country one can see, so be kind."

"Oh, yes, yes, yes!" cried Hanka and Kuba together.

Who remembers the bad old days when a girl wanted to talk awhile before she started kissing? (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

There is only one thing, apparently, that is paramount even to God and eternity. That is the color of a skin. At least, racial caste seems to be the only thing people will not give up, even in the communion of the saints.

Buddhism was driven out of India, the land of its origin, when it refused to recognize caste. And the negro question is the only obstacle, in America, to the reunion of the Methodist churches north and south or God.

The fatherhood of God may be all-inclusive, but the brotherhood of man stops at the line of caste.

The only religion that draws no lines is Mohammedanism. And it does so, not because it honors God more, but because it honors woman less. For at bottom, caste is a marriage tabu.

Mohammedanism, with its soullessness of woman, its polygamy and its harems, naturally draws that line more loosely. So there is no line in the mosque, either.

But everywhere else, he whose race may not marry with us shall also not break bread with us, even in the Communion of Christ. It may not be Christian. But it is much older than Christianity.

This is not to condemn nor to justify it merely to explain it.

Which is better, a strategic frontier

"Come along, boy and girl," said Kuba kindly. Kuba was the boy. "Hanka and I are twins. Are you twins? You look alike?"

"Yes, we are," said Nancy. "And you look alike, too."

Just then the music of the merry-go-round started again in the distance. It went tinkle, tinkle, turn, turn, bang, bang! so invitingly that Nancy and Nick had to stop talking to listen.

"Come along!" cried Kuba. "We'll get some rides."

Nobody needed to be asked twice. Away they scampered, all four, and in a few minutes each one was seated on a spirited wooden steed with gorgeous trappings.

"See here, Benkova!" said Kuba to a fat woman in big earrings and huge green satin sleeves, who came around for the fares—Kuba spoke in a hoarse tone. "We are to have all the rides we wish, for nothing. Also our new friends here, Yuzka says so and our father says she must be minded."

"Quite so! Quite so!" nodded the fat woman in the green satin sleeves. "You shall ride till the saddles get thin, my dears. It will save the donkeys' backs, to be sure."

Then she rang a bell, and the merry-go-round started again on its travels.

"Tinkle, tinkle! Toot, toot! Bang, bang!"

Nancy and Nick soon decided that of all the adventures they had had so far in Picture Land this one was about the best of all.

The TANGLE

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT (CONTINUED)

"You know, Aunt Sally," said little Jack turning to me, "that my daddy wants me to love my mover best, for my mover she—she is—she is—!" He could not think of any comparison splendid enough for you, my dear, so he just spread out his arms as far as they would go and with the most beatific expression on his face, he finished.

"I love my mover so much dad I'm almost busted wiv it."

I wonder if you'd be surprised, Leslie, to know that neither of us children women sitting there smiled, when we heard that baby make the greatest declaration of love that had come to the ears of either of us. Paula bent over and kissed little Jack's face until he drew away from her.

"I wonder if Madame Leslie knows she holds such an exalted place in her oldest son's heart?" she asked quietly.

"I think she does," I returned. "And I think if you would see them together, you would know that the love and adoration of the boy is returned in the same measure to him by his mother. I have always felt that there is a bond between Leslie Prescott and her adopted son that is even deeper than the mere act of bearing him."

There! I'm not going to talk any more about this. I get sentimental as you see and it doesn't do any good, Leslie. I begin to pity myself, and my heart says:

"You see what you have missed!"

I am very glad you are coming back next week, for I want Paula to see that goodnight ceremony where Jack promises always to protect his little brother under any circumstances, because "my mover asked me to and I will do it because I love my mover and after her my buddy."

Of course you know your mother came in yesterday. Mr. Prescott told me that she talked with you over the phone from his room. They went immediately to your house from the dock, as Jimmy Condon met them at the boat and told them of Mr. Prescott's accident. I am going down to see her tonight.

Your husband, Leslie, told me today that Mrs. Graves is looking better than she has for years and she seemed quite happy to have her home again.

There I will not write any more, for, of course, I shall see you soon.

Lovingly,

SALLY.

TOMORROW—Letter from Mrs. Mary Alden Prescott to Leslie Prescott.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service

A condition for which everyone is subject at some period of life for a short time, and in some degree fairly often, is that of an unpleasant odor of the breath, spoken of as halitosis.

There are four main causes of halitosis.

First—Unhealthy, diseased or unhygienic condition of the mouth and nose.

Second—Certain diseases of the lungs.

Third—The use of alcohol and tobacco.

Fourth—Toxic conditions, particularly those affecting the digestive tract, including all grades of auto-intoxication and even simple indigestion in diet.

With temporary halitosis, due to acute illness, we are not concerned, except to say that in any illness, the mouth and tongue should be kept scrupulously clean, otherwise serious, even disastrous complications may follow, such as the so-called "inhalation pneumonia," sore throat and sinus infection and abscess of the parotid gland.

In a majority of cases halitosis will be found to be due to such conditions as "tartar," which collects on the teeth and should be removed by a dentist; to septic gums and to decaying teeth, often with disintegrating particles of food between them.

It should be noted here that food particles should be removed from between even sound teeth and if this can not be done with a brush, and often it cannot, one should use dental floss. Particles of food often lodge in the crypts of the tonsils, and decaying, give rise to halitosis.

Stomatitis, which is an inflammatory affection of the mucous membrane of the mouth, may or may not be associated with pyorrhea and is a frequent cause of halitosis. There are many causes of stomatitis, or inflammation of the mouth, but the simpler ones with which we are concerned are a jagged tooth, usually carious, a rough filling, a broken or ill-fitting plate or a small portion of an extracted tooth, left under the plate.

Pyorrhea, or that condition in which pus pockets form around the roots of the teeth, is a very common cause of halitosis and also a condition which will lead to serious consequences if neglected.

Halitosis is not infrequently associated with pulmonary tuberculosis or consumption where the disease has reached the stage in which cavities are formed in the tissues of the lungs. Here, however, it is not so much the breath but the material that is expectorated that is involved.

When no local condition exists which would account for the condition of the breath we are discussing, and when there is no acute or chronic systemic disease present, it will usually be found that halitosis is due to some disturbance of the digestive function. Among such disturbances may be mentioned dyspepsia and the fermentation in the intestinal tract of partially digested food. Furthermore, it will often be found that halitosis is due to the fact that the alimentary canal does not function with the necessary degree of regularity and sufficiency.

BY AHRENS

Finally, halitosis may be due to overeating. When overindulgence in food is associated with insufficient exercise, and this is further complicated by loss of sleep and neglect of other hygienic measures, the effect is very much increased.

What is the remedy for halitosis? Naturally, the remedy depends on the cause. If there exist unhealthy or diseased conditions of the mouth, the nose or the tonsil or of the accessory sinuses of the nose, these conditions must be corrected by your physician.

If there exist diseased conditions of the teeth or gum, these must be corrected by your dentist. Systemic diseases, acute or chronic, will, of course, overshadow the condition or symptom of halitosis and must be properly treated. Let us suppose that none of these conditions exist but that halitosis is still present.

Ignoring tobacco and alcohol, for obvious reasons, it may be said that the treatment of halitosis, when not associated with actual disease, resolves itself into scrupulous care of the teeth and careful attention to diet and to other hygienic measures, avoiding excesses in eating, especially of proteins particularly when taken with excessive quantities of starches and sugars.

VETERANS BUREAU REPORT IS GIVEN TO THE CONGRESS

Director Hines Tells of the Work and Estimates
Its Need

Washington, Dec. 9—(AP)—Excluding expenses necessary for the adjusted service certificate fund and for hospital construction, an appropriation of $314,955,000 is estimated in the annual report made public of Director Hines as necessary for all Veterans Bureau activities during the fiscal year 1926-27.

This figure represents a material reduction in the appropriation for the current fiscal year, provided a proportionately smaller amount is asked for administration of the adjusted service act as was the case this year, when $50,000,000 compared with $100,000,000 last fiscal year, was allotted for that purpose. Current appropriations, including that for the adjusted service fund, total $495,713,552.

In an introduction to his report, Director Hines said that during the last fiscal year "as over no other period has the service of the United States Veterans Bureau been brought to the disabled veteran."

"Inspired by a broad policy of decentralization of authority and made possible through the provisions of liberal legislation," he said, "this extension of service to the disabled in the outstanding accomplishment of the year in the administration of veterans' relief."

Complete decentralization of Bureau activities was described by Mr. Hines as a good "founded on the theory that 'only through bringing the activities of veterans' relief closer to the men they serve can the obtain the direct action considered essential for the proper construction of the merits of individual cases and necessary for the expeditious adjudication of claims."

The spread of authority to the field was accomplished, the report showed, by substituting 54 regional offices for 14 district offices and consolidating subdistrict offices with the regional. Eleven suboffices were in operation June 30, 1925, but the Bureau planned to reduce this number to eight by December 31, these eight to be at Springfield, Mass., Albany, N. Y., Syracuse, N. Y., Scranton, Pa., Harrisburg, Pa., Columbus, Ohio; Lexington, Ky., and East St. Louis, Ill.

Six new hospitals were opened during the year with a net increase of 4,794 beds, and the report said all construction under the $6,850,000 authorized in 1924 was expected to be completed during the next fiscal year. No hospitals were closed, and wherever feasible, radio equipment was installed for the patients' amusement.

Total expenditures for all veterans' purposes amounted to $393,755,857, a decrease of $21,352,540 compared with the previous year. This was attributed chiefly to the decline in the number of men undergoing vocational training, only $60,482,478 being expended for this purpose as against $106,954,450 in 1923-24.

In connection with its guardianship system for the protection of beneficiaries of veterans, a relatively new phase of activity, the report disclosed that guardianship supervisors had uncovered many cases where "guardians have not functioned in an efficient manner and have not accounted for all the trust funds paid to them by the Bureau." Forfeiture of bonds and, in some cases, criminal proceedings resulted, the report said.

Legislation was recommended providing some means to take care of veterans, who, because of their physical condition, could not be inducted into vocational training prior to July 1, last, the last lawful date for induction, and for those cases where progress has been, or will be, so retarded as to prevent completion of training before next July 1, when all training activities are required by law to end.

Recognizing that many yearly renewable term insurance contracts are held by veterans incapable of earning a full livelihood, and that conversion of these into the higher premium, ordinary life policies by July 2, 1926, as required by law, will be impossible because of financial inability, consideration was being given, Director Hines said, to a short term policy at a premium rate less than the ordinary life plan.

"However," he added "the continuance of insurance on a premium basis less than ordinary life rates necessarily results in a higher premium later, and in view of the fact that the average age of veterans is now 32 the selection of a legal-reserve level-premium insurance should not be postponed longer than a few years."

Clinton Sport Writer Feels Better Now He's Had Cry

Dixon was a storm center in more than one way Sunday afternoon, as was gleaned by glancing over the sports page of the Clinton Advertiser. Likewise, Dixon is possessed of a citizen who is not 'blyver' popular with members of the Clinton Legion football crew, who were "duped" into making the long and tiresome journey of 40 miles from Clinton to Dixon Sunday only to refuse to play the scheduled game at Brown's field. The following wall is recorded in Monday's issue of the Advertiser:

Clinton's American Legion football team and a delegation of about 100 fans journeyed to Dixon, Ill., Sunday for the scheduled contest between the locals and the Dixon Legion.

Arriving in Dixon the Clintonites found the Illinois city in the grip of a near blizzard and less than 100 fans at Brown's field for the game.

After waiting until half an hour after scheduled game time in hopes of the crowd assembling the locals packed up and returned to Clinton.

Receipts Small.

Gate receipts were less than $175, of which according to contract some $50 would be taken out for expenses and the balance split fifty-fifty between the two teams. Dixon's team strengthened by several new men, willing to play but the locals refused to take chances of injuries on the frozen field for their share of the receipts.

Efforts to get definite information in regard to a sale of advance tickets brought forth many surprising features. The Dixon manager, Ward Miller, had assured Clinton Friday evening that 500 tickets had been sold for the game at $1 each. This $500 the locals contended should be included with the $175 taken in Sunday as the total receipts for the game, which

SALE DISAPPEARS

When queried about the $500 Miller declared that he hadn't been able to sell a single advance ticket. In light of his previous assurance of a heavy advance sale the locals felt that there was a "nigger in the woodpile." When Dixon offered to play winner take all of the profits of the game (the $175 taken in at the game, minus expenses) they were convinced that the Dixon boys had something up their sleeves—perhaps the advance sale money.

Manager Eulingme left the matter to a vote of the Clinton players who were unanimous in their decision not to play unless Dixon made some sort of an accounting for the alleged advance sale.

Money taken in at the gate was returned to the customers and the battle called off. Clinton players were subjected to a "razing" by Dixon fans who crowded about them with cries of "yellow" and intimations that the locals were afraid to play.

It was a bad break for the locals who had a chance to either play at Rock Island or bring Dubuque to Clinton Sunday. Neither Clinton or Rock Island were touched by the storm which resulted in poor attendance at Dixon, and it is probable that the locals would have made money on either contest. As it was they added another small loss to their list and cut the 1925 profits still more.

Macdonald Smith, north and south, western and Long Island open gold champion, has departed for the Pacific coast to participate in the $10,000 tournament which starts January 8 at Los Angeles Country Club. Many other leading eastern professionals expect to follow him.

Vernon, Calif.—Jimmy McLarnin,

NEW YORK—While the "melting pot" boils away many of the European customs of immigrants, there are some, beloved of the children, that no more can be removed from the calendar of childhood than can Santa Claus.

One such is the "ragamuffin parade," to be seen only in New York. The "ragamuffin" game is an importation from Southern Italy, and the Balkan countries, but in New York it has spread among the children of all nations. The youngsters ransack the cellars and garrets for the discarded clothes of their elders and appear in the streets by the tens of thousands, some with faces chalked like clowns, some in their mother's petticoats, some in dad's old overalls, some in derbies and some in silk hats.

In Europe it was the fashion to let the children take on the complete role of beggar and seek aims in the street and at the doors as well.

When the amusing pageant was introduced to America the begging idea came right along and, quite naturally, found popularity among American youngsters who saw in it a means of getting extra dimes for the movies and ice cream sodas.

This year the "melting pot" tool steps to boil out this mendicant habit. As usual the ragamuffins thronged the streets in their corned clothes, but everywhere they were greeted by signs turned out by boys organizations reading: "American boys do not beg!"

"Once a showman, always an actor," goes a Broadway axiom.

Actors may leave the stage and enter other professions, but the old hankering to "do a number" is never lost. Take Harry Cooper, for instance.

Some years ago Cooper left the footlights to become a successful insurance agent. Yet on Thanksgiving or Christmas he gets back into the game for a brief hour, appearing at charitable theatrical performances.

For 23 years Cooper has appeared on Thanksgiving day before the prisoners on Welfare Island, New York's workshop.

JUDGE EDWARDS GAVE MEMORIAL SPEECH, MOLINE

Dixon Jurist Speaker at Elks' Exercises There
Sunday

The lasting quality of true fraternalism is typified in the observance of fitting memorials for departed brothers. Judge Harry Edwards of this city, told several hundred Elks, members of their families and friends Sunday afternoon at the annual services conducted by the Moline lodge of Elks in their new $500,000 home.

"The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands, their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory," Judge Edwards quoted in the opening passage of his oration. "Our memory wanders in the past of sacred years on such occasions as this and we are filled with an impulse to keep within us the finer things of life. All things animate are born to die, but in living, we all, as true Elks, should so regulate our lives that when we pass on we will leave behind a memory of having been one who loved his fellow man."

Good Outweighs Bad

"Each should so gauge his life so that the good he will do shall outweigh the bad. In beauty of the Golden Rule, the Elks sought a foundation upon which to build. Tolerance and sympathy, the key to brotherly love, should always be exercised in dealings with our fellow man."

"While knowing that sooner or later we too must die, we are not at the same time certain of the living, breathing present and we should let no moment pass without having done something to express our kindly affections for those about us."

"Laws of nature fix a time for the changes of season but for death there is no season. For all of us there must be a transition and we should always know that life can not be in vain, no matter what its trials. Death is a remarkable purifier. Those who had gone before had their weaknesses. But death exalts their virtues, and from them we should gain the strength necessary to make our lives worthy of the departed."

The annual Elks memorial service Sunday afternoon, marked the first public event to be held in the fine new home of the Moline Elks and the committee in charge had arranged a very fine program of musical numbers together with the beautiful memorial address by Judge Edwards.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Dayton, O.—Lieutenant John A. Macready is preparing to gamble with his life on the proposition that he can get farther away from mother earth than any other man that ever lived.

In the near future the famous army flier will get into his airplane and try to fly eight miles high.

To say that this will be gambling with his life is not exaggerating. The perils of flight in such high altitudes are extreme.

He will ascend to a region where there is not enough air to support life. To meet this he must take tanks of liquid oxygen.

It will be many degrees below zero up there above the clouds. Furlined clothes, electrically heated, offer the only possible protection great enough to enable him to withstand the cold.

Another Danger

The change in air pressure in descending from such a high level to the ground is very marked. Four years ago Macready set a world's altitude mark, since surpassed, of 34,508 feet. In coming down the change of air pressure made him ill, drawing blood from his nose and ears.

Only a nearly-perfect plane and a nearly perfect body can withstand such a trip. Major R. W. Schroeder, in 1920, lost consciousness at an altitude of five miles. Down came his plane, with Schroeder's senseless body, falling in the pilot's seat. Five miles is a long way to fall.

By some providential circumstance, the only possible protection great when only a few hundred feet from the ground, and managed to get control over his plane and land safely.

Such are the things with which an aviator must cope when he tries for an altitude record.

Macready wants that altitude record, and wants it badly. He had held it until a year ago, when the French flier, Collado, went up to 39,586 feet. To get the record he must fly 400 feet higher than this. He thinks he can do it.

Fuselage is Old

The plane in which he will make the flight is known as CXO-6. Its fuselage was built three years ago, but the wings—the important things in aerial work—are new, especially designed for flying at high altitudes. It has a 400 horsepower Liberty motor and a total wing area of 600 square feet. The propellers are of aluminum alloy, ten feet six inches in length.

Macready is now busy testing it. A weakness in a plane is bad enough at any time; but when you're trying to fly eight miles high it is simply unthinkable. Those altitudes call for the highest type of workmanship in all parts of the machine.

Will Use Camera
One of the uses of the proposed flight will be to determine the maximum altitude from which it is possible to take pictures. In war time it would be invaluable to have a plane from which pictures of enemy territory could be taken from an eight-mile height. Up there the plane could neither be seen nor heard from the ground.

McCook Field pilots are confident that Macready will break the record and so is Macready.

In fact, he's gambling his life on it.

Hundreds of Nominations Sent to Senate by Chief

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Several hundred nominations to public office, mostly postmasters, were sent to the senate for confirmation today by President Coolidge. Many of those named already are holding office under recess appointment. Among the names sent to the capitol was that of one cabinet member, Secretary Davis of the War Department, appointed since congress adjourned last spring. The President also sent in the names of all members of the diplomatic corps appointed during the recess.

SENATE PAUSES TO PERFECT ITS BIG COMMITTEES

Action on LaFollette to Go Before Carous of Republicans

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—With President Coolidge's legislative recommendations spread on the record and the first flood of bills and resolutions presented, the senate paused today to give its committees time to organize while the house went ahead with the tax bill.

The non-partisan measure, carrying a $225,000 cut in the nation's tax burden, and endorsed "in principle" by the president in his annual message yesterday, received the praise of leaders of both parties on the ways and means committee, which framed it, in opening general debate on the bill yesterday.

By agreement, general debate on the measure will be concluded not later than Saturday night and leaders are confident that, with a clear right of way, it will receive final action in the house before the end of next week. Representative Mills of New York, republican member of the ways and means committee, had prepared an address on the bill for today.

Senate Gets Many Bills.
A number of measures proposing to carry out the major recommendations of the President were included in the 1,045 bills and resolutions introduced in the senate yesterday as the first crop. Meanwhile, the total of 2,027 bills and resolutions thrown into the house hopper on the first day has been swelled by several hundred more.

The work of completing organization of the senate committees which went ahead today, while that body was in adjournment until tomorrow, finds the question whether Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin should be classified as a republican in committee assignments still undetermined.

The senate committee on committees came to a deadlock on Senator LaFollette's case yesterday and after a heated discussion of more than an hour over a resolution recommending his acceptance as a republican decided to refer the issue to the republican caucus.

While the house was discussing the tax bill, a brief debate in the Senate before adjournment yesterday over a resolution by Chairman Moses of the postoffice committee to continue present postal rates until the next session of congress was enlivened by a few political sallies from Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

RECORDS FALL IN ATTENDANCE AT GYM CLASS

Largest Numbers for Each Class Reported to Secretary

Regular gym class attendance records were shattered yesterday when the classes at the Y. M. C. A. made an average attendance in four classes of twenty-two. The Junior class, which is just finishing a big class contest, had twenty boys working hard in every game to win the big feed.

The Business men's class at 8:15, turned out eighteen strong. This group put in some hard work at volleyball and a short workout. More men are really enjoying this class as they see and try out the games and exercises for their own satisfaction. The Intermediate, after a hard workout, enjoyed some spirited basketball. There were twenty-two boys in this class.

The Senior group of twenty-four young men, were divided into four teams and worked enthusiastically until 10:00 o'clock. These fellows are not in the class for the exercise alone; it is their intention to get together the fastest team of basketball players in the city and to put Dixon on the map as a basketball town. Competition is at high pitch and some flashy basket ball is being played. A full season's schedule is to be arranged as soon as possible.

HIS HOBBY CARRIED HIM TO FAME

How William Francis Gibbs Rode His Boyhood Hobby to an International Reputation as a Designer of Ocean Greyhounds.

THE Cappadocia, newest and swiftest of ocean liners, slid smoothly off the ways. Under her own momentum she glided across the white capped surface of the bay. Two tugs that had been lying in wait puffed up to the knife sharp bow and made fast their lines. With an ear splitting shrieking of sirens and a swirling of waters the vessel was towed out of the channel and brought to rest close off shore. There she lay while William Francis Gibbs, the nine-year-old designer, studied her trim and the way she rode the waves set up by a passing cruiser. Then he lifted her out of the bathtub and marched off to his workshop.

Thirty Years Later
Three decades have rolled by since the launching of the Cappadocia in a bathtub which the imagination of a boy had invested with the huge berths, the towering cranes, and all the other titanic activities of a busy shipyard. For the last seven years the man who was that boy has been recognized both at home and abroad as one of the most brilliant ship designers this country has ever produced.

From playing with toy boats to international fame as a marine architect! From the family bathtub to a famous shipyard on the Atlantic Coast, where this marine architect is busy today constructing the Malolo, the largest and fastest high-powered passenger steamship ever built in the United States! They seem like long jumps. They are, too. But not so long as they seem.

Most people will tell you that it is a good thing for a boy to have a hobby. William Francis Gibbs will go further. He will tell you that he would not be supervising the construction of a great liner today but for the boyhood hobby that led to the launching of the Cappadocia.

All of his success in later life goes back to that hobby. The hobby horse he groomed so carefully as a youngster has proved the steed to carry him to fame and fortune.

The Boy Gibbs
Thousands and tens of thousands of American boys have built themselves toy boats and have sailed them in anything they could find, from the bathtub to the ocean. Caught by the beauty and the mystery of ships, a boy needs only his fertile imagination to people his craft with a swaggering crew and stuff her hold with the treasures of Cathay.

In the case of most boys, however, other things soon come to seem more interesting. Games, the movies, mo-

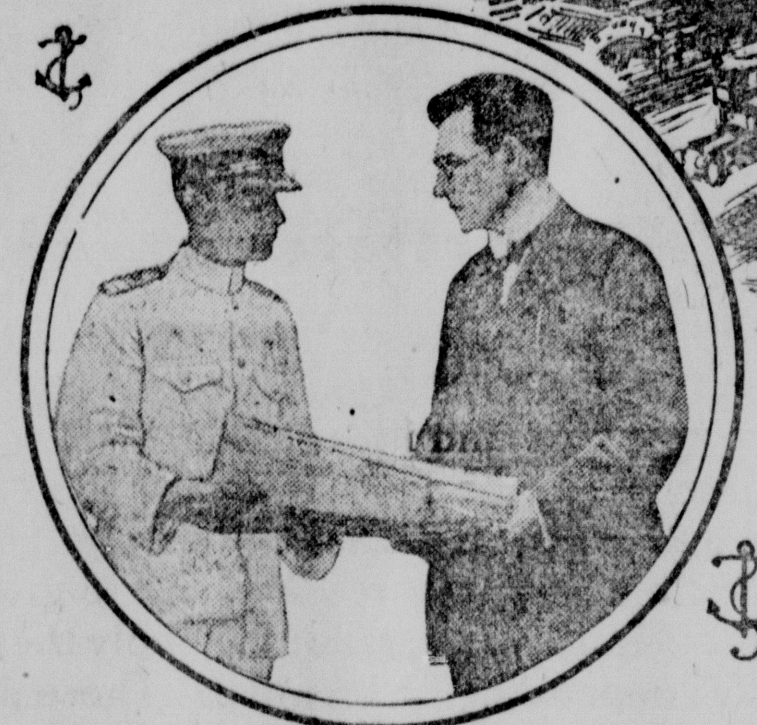

But this time the designer did not stand alone. Beside him were ranged the men who were to select the design for a standard type of vessel to carry troops and supplies to the war zone.

Seven other models embodying the designs of other marine architects had floated in that tank before his but the delicate instruments that measured speed, wind resistance and a mass of other technical detail showed that his model surpassed them all. When the design for the large standardized troop ships was adopted seven of the eleven essential points of design were by William Francis Gibbs.

Few men have made so swift a gallop to success. But then few men have ridden their hobbies so long and hard, or with so much singleness of purpose.

Doing the Impossible
The scene shifts to the days after the war, and the Leviathan lying useless at her docks. The Germans had refused to sell the government or anyone else her plans except under preposterous terms. Without plans she could not be reconditioned. "All right," said Gibbs, "I'll make a new set of plans."

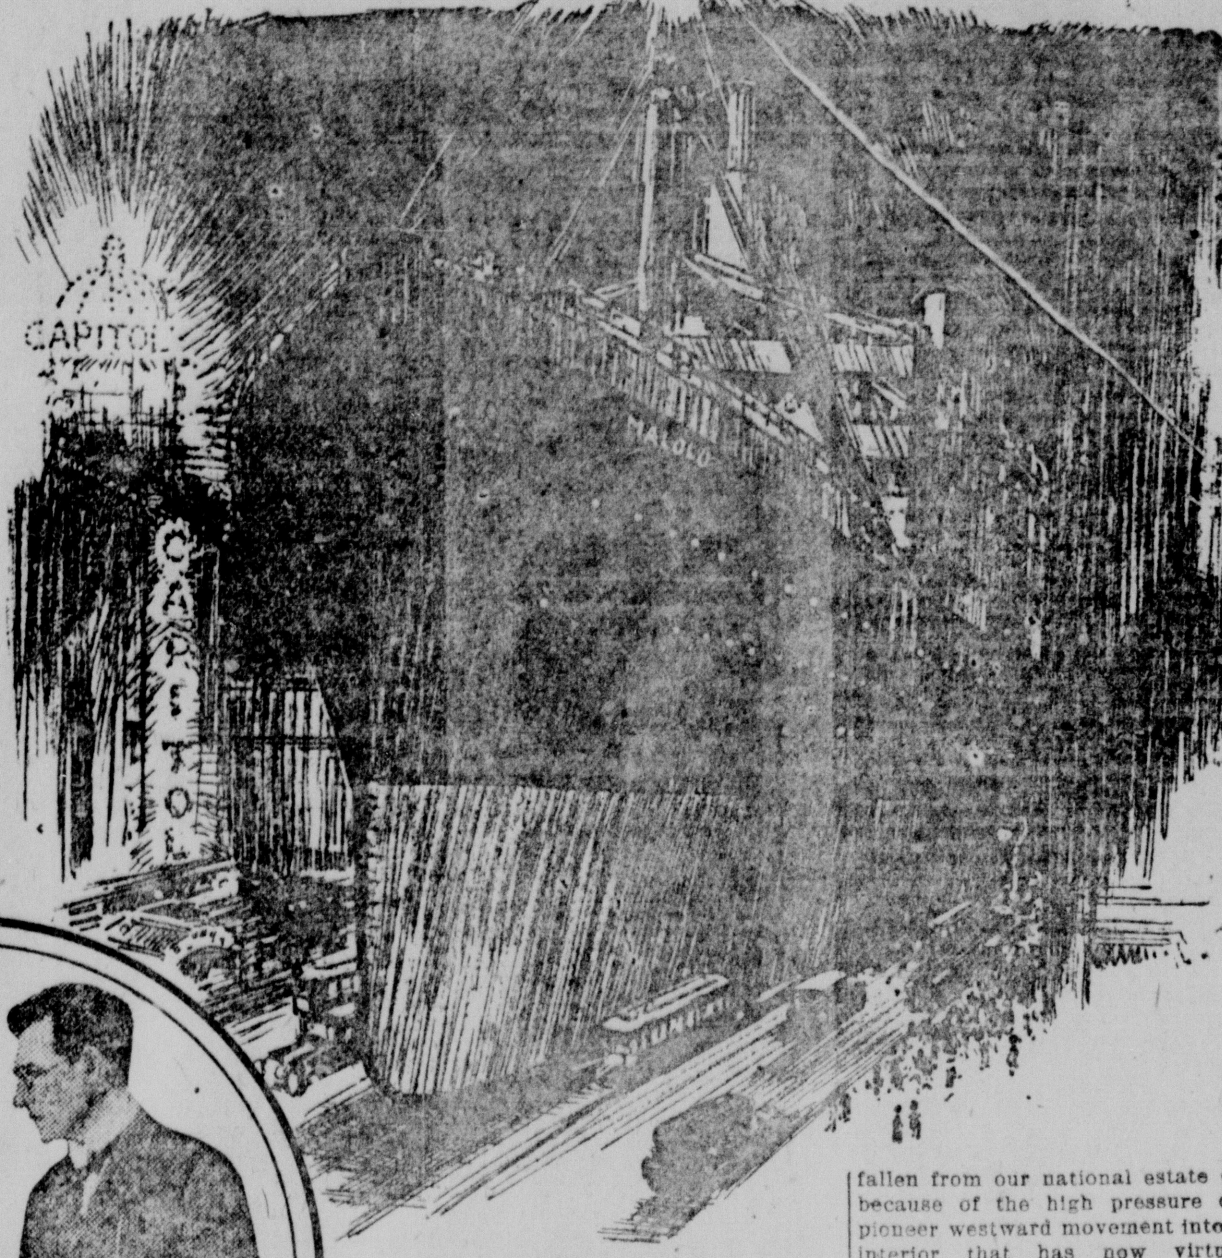

The Germans laughed. So did others.

William Francis Gibbs, and Captain Herbert Hartley who commanded the Leviathan on her trial trip after reconditioning.

or marine architects and engineers. It couldn't be done.

But Gibbs did it. With his staff he went over the Leviathan inch by inch, not figuratively, but literally. Every rivet hole was measured. Every pipe and electric conduit was or parallel. Its success startled the whole shipping world. But the shipping world was in for a still greater shock. On her trial trip, after the reconditioning, the Leviathan made a speed of over two knots per hour above anything she had ever developed before. The young American had beaten the Germans at their own game.

For American Ships
It is only natural that a man who has loved ships so long and so well should dream of and work for the return of the days when the American flag was seen in every port and was swept in surging circles around the world.

"I am for American ships and a great American merchant navy," says Gibbs, "not only as a matter of pride, but because a nation with a coast line as long as ours is by nature a maritime nation. We have time they are excused by court on account of holidays or other reasons; and jurors excused owing to the fact that a case on trial will not be disposed of for some time are also not entitled to pay for this time because they are not in "necessary attendance at court."

He also advised that a juror summoned on a special venire, but who has not been called upon to serve in the jury box is entitled to one day's fees and mileage.

A bystander called to the jury box but not accepted is not entitled to any allowance, he said. A bystander accepted for service would not be entitled to mileage unless the jury is permitted to separate and the trial lasts for more than one day.

fallen from our national estate only because of the high pressure of a pioneer westward movement into the interior that has now virtually ceased.

"Today the cities of the west are industrial centers. The vast and once trackless prairies have become waving fields of grain that Europe looks to as one of the chief sources of its food supply. We have become a nation of manufacturers, agriculturalists, and exporters; and we should develop a system of ocean transportation to parallel our railroad system which is the greatest in the world.

"But material considerations aside, ships are our birthright. Our history proves it. And even though the inland empire has been conquered by the onward march of civilization, there still remains an ocean empire ready to yield honor and more tangible rewards to American shipowners and the men who man the ships."

BIGGER and faster than any high-powered passenger steamship ever built in the United States, the Malolo's smokestacks would top a fourteen-story building, while her three huge anchors, weighing 22 tons apiece, would be six stories above the pavement.

If she were set down with her bow at the corner of Fifth and Broadway, the Malolo's stern would rest well beyond the corner of Broadway and Fifty-second street. Her great breadth of beam would leave but six feet on either side between her and the building line.

The huge vessel's electric lighting plant is to be equivalent to that of a town of 6,000 people. Her pumping system will equal the water works of a city of nearly two million.

the construction of the Malolo that William Francis Gibbs is doing his part to restore to his country her lost heritage of the sea.

When the Malolo is put into service on the San Francisco-Honolulu run in the Spring of 1927 she will be something even more than the largest and fastest high-powered passenger steamship ever built on this side of the Atlantic. She will be a tangible proof that American yards can turn out ships the equal of those built anywhere in the world.

Hurling her 22,000 tons of steel through the long blue rollers of the tropic ocean at 25 miles an hour, this splendid monster will make the round trip between San Francisco and Honolulu in eight days—four days less than the fastest vessel now on the run.

The 600 passengers—all first class—will live in surroundings that will rival the luxury of the most famous of metropolitan hotels. A ballroom, a library, a gymnasium, a swimming pool—everything will be there that can add to the pleasure and the comfort of the voyage. On the whole broad bosom of the Pacific there will be no passenger vessel that can stand beside the product of an American designer and an American shipyard.

The design and construction of the Malolo is the latest episode in the brilliant career of a man who is still under forty. The most productive years of his life lie ahead of William Francis Gibbs. But no matter what heights he may reach, underneath his niche in the Hall of Fame should stand the words, "A Hobby Carried Him Here."

Good Dispositions Invaluable

You can't watch your disposition too carefully. A crab and a grouch are rarely successful. If your liver and stomach are in an unhealthy condition you can not have a sunny disposition because they affect the brain as well as the entire system. May's Wonderful Remedy has been usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. ## Coke Heat Saves 25%

Reduces the Fuel Bill in Any Furnace-Heated Home and is Cleaner and Safer.

The American people are the most progressive in the world and they are, according to statistics, fast changing from coal to coke for fuel.

By-product coke is the heat essence of coal. It is free of the smoke, soot, gas and dust which evaporate and waste under heat. The coke maker "bakes" these materials out of the coal and converts them into useful products.

The ordinary household furnace or heating apparatus "expels" them up the chimney as waste.

The Government Experts state that any furnace, be it hot air, hot water, steam or combination heater, must convert the coal into coke before the heat units in it are available. Thus the householder loses all that is wasted while the coke-maker saves it, but both make coke.

QUICK FIRE COKE is the highest quality of by-product coke it is possible to make and will save a household 25% of its fuel bill and heat his home more satisfactorily than either hard or soft coal, no matter what kind of furnace or heater he uses it in.

QUICK FIRE COKE is manufactured by the Indiana Coke & Gas Company of Terre Haute, Indiana, and there is no by-product coke made anywhere that can equal it for all purposes. After years of experimenting and actual tests through all sorts of weather in various kinds of classes of dwellings and buildings for heating in furnaces, both hot air and steam or hot water boilers, they have perfected their own special formula that their coke is absolutely uniform in heat units, freedom from dust, waste and small particles. A ton of it will go farther than a ton of either hard or soft coal, and dollar for dollar, it will render a very much larger percentage of heat than coal.

This company has prepared a practical and easily understood booklet concerning the use of "QUICK FIRE COKE" and how to burn it and save money on your next winter's coal bill. It is free to anyone who will write for it to the above company.

Just as getting "Quick Fire Coke" when you buy. If your dealer does not furnish you with the genuine take no other for none other is so good. ## BUDGET FOR COMING YEAR TO CONGRESS

There have been two substantial reductions in taxes. We have restored to the people a part of the money which we required of them to finance the World War. We are now in that favorable position of making further restoration. The Budget and Accounting Act contemplates that under the fortunate conditions in which we now find ourselves the Chief Executive will make recommendations to the Congress as to the disposition of the estimated surplus of revenue. I therefore recommend to the Congress that there be a further reduction in taxes. The satisfaction of the Chief Executive in having opportunity to make such a recommendation I know is shared by the Congress whose co-operation with the Chief Executive in the conservation of public funds has made such reduction in taxes possible.

"The Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives has been informed of our prospective surplus for 1927. That committee has prepared a tax reduction measure. While this measure somewhat exceeds my judgment in amount and in exemptions, yet with continuing pressure for economy in the federal service and the stimulation to business which will result from tax reduction, perhaps we can make further reduction in taxes of about the sum total of our jeopardizing the balancing of our annual budget. Such reduction, however, should carry an obligation not to embark upon new projects involving large annual expenditure if we are to safeguard the integrity of our budget.

"The fruits of our labors are reflected in the coming tax reduction measure. It reflects the results of the efforts of the servants of the people and of their representatives in behalf of the people. There have been no partisan politics in expedition in preparation. I hope this same condition will prevail in the consideration of the measure.

Must Meet Expansion.
This brings us to the estimates of appropriations contained in this budget. These estimates reflect the continuing pressure for economy in federal expenditure. We have about reached the time when the legitimate business of government can not be carried on at a less expenditure than that which it now requires. With regard to our legitimate business, the operating costs have been reduced to nearly a minimum. The normal expansion of the business of the government in keeping pace with a grow-nation will involve added expenditure from year to year. The effort for economy, however, must continue. So far as it lies within the power of the Chief Executive it will continue."

The President said he would send to Congress later a request for funds from the people through both federal and state taxes. He suggested that while no change could be made in the government's policy for the time being, he believed that later the federal participation should be confined to construction of primary or interstate highways.

Mr. Coolidge adverted to the changing of indications of receipts and expenditures which had been estimated for the current year and said that instead of refunds totalling $90,000,000 on taxes illegally collected, present indication point to refunds of $111,000,000.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore is at the farmhouse of David Lacy, on Long Island, in company with Sweetie, a mysterious young woman whom she met aboard
a no less mysterious yacht last night.
So the farmhouse comes Aunt Celime-na and Brewster, her lawyer. Conne-mara had slipped away from Auntie's Connecticut home on the night she was to have announced her engagement.
Bing Carrington, one of her suitors, has been thrown off another yacht and has swum to shore.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

"May I use your telephone? Important. Must get the police at once," chattered the amazing object that greeted the eyes of the servant. Bing was a thoroughly saturated, glistening visitor from an absolutely unknown world. He was a thing of many colors.

Before the blinking servant could muster the words to reply, or the strength to slam the door, a masculine voice called out from somewhere inside the house.

"Who's there? What's up?"
"God—God only knows, sir," cried the servant. "I never saw anything like—"

"I say," bawled Carrington, man-fully pushing his way into the hall
—"I say, look here, where's your telephone? Don't come down. I must get hold of the police. Oh, hello! There you are. I didn't mean to get you out of bed."

A man fully dressed, was coming hurriedly down the stairs. He stopped about halfway down, and stared at the strange visitor.

"Well, for the love of Mike!"
"Where is it?"

"You needn't be afraid of me," chattered Bing.

"Where is what?"
"The telephone."

"Oh, the telephone? It's out of order. Isn't working. Can't get central or anything on it. But, who the devil are you and—what's up?
Accident?"

"You needn't be afraid of me," chattered Bing. Now, remembering what was said about the telephone, he added: "Did you say out of order?"

"I did. What do you want with the police? But first of all, can't I give you a nip of whiskey? You seem wet."

"Say that again, please," cried
Bing, eagerly.

"You seem wet."

"I didn't mean that."

"Oh, I see. Henry, bring it into the library at once."

"I'll drip all over your rugs."

"Hang the rugs. No, that's what you do when you beat 'em. I don't know what you do when you wet
'em."

"Sorry to get you out of bed like this," apologized Bing, following the other down the hall, his feet squashing in a most lachrymose manner.

"Can't you see I've got all my clothes on?"

"Oh, excuse me. I didn't know but what perhaps you might have—ahem! Yes, as I was saying, there is no time to be lost."

"Now tell me all about it," said his host, a stout, middle-aged gentleman. Henry had returned.

Whereupon Bing, in a few words as possible, gave him a bald and discreetly incomplete story of his most recent adventure.

"My name is Merrill," announced his host, when Bing paused for obvious reasons. Mr. Merrill was evidently a man of action and resource.

"Run runners, that's what they are.
Now, I have a brother, Bob Merrill—a good bit younger than I am

He's in the revenue service. That is to say, he's a sort of volunteer Secret Service man. Amateur sleuth, you know. Terribly keen about it. Simply delights in chasing smugglers, shooting at 'em, and all that sort of thing. Keeps his launch just off his landing. He's been out in the Sound tonight, roving around, looking for bad eggs.
By bad eggs I mean smugglers.
That's what he calls 'em, smugglers.
I heard the launch come in half an hour or so ago and tie up to the buoy. So I suppose Bob's out there now. He sleeps on board these nights—ready for anything, you see.
Now, I tell you what we'll do. We'll get a rowboat, paddle out there, and get him on the job. He'll run these confounded pirates to earth or sink
'em."

"Well, that would be the same thing as running them to earth, all right. I suppose there's earth at the bottom of the Sound."

"Lots of it. Largely protected by bottles. Come along. Let's be off. No time to lose. Ah, I beg your pardon. You must get into some dry clothes. Henry, take Mr.
Carrington upstairs and—dress him. Give him that grey checked suit of mine. Shirt, underclothes, and everything too. You certainly need a change, Mr. Carrington."

"Oh, I am perfectly warm now.
Clear down to my toes."

"Well, I'll have another one waiting for you when you come down.
About the same dose—or a trifle
stiffer?"

"Suit yourself, Mr. Merrill," said
Bing genially.

He followed Henry upstairs and in a very short time returned to the library, completely—or to be quite honest about it—rather in-completely attired in Mr. Merrill's gray checked suit. Bing was a tall, spare man, Merrill a short, pudgy
one. It was a very fashionable suit of clothes, but it lacked cohesion when applied to Mr. Carrington's frame. The coat scarcely reached to the small of his back, there was a seven or eight inch gap between waistcoat and trousers, and nearly all of Mr. Merrill's white socks were exposed to view.

"You look fine," said Mr. Merrill approvingly. "Much better than you did a while ago."

Two minutes later they were hurrying down to the shore, and Henry was off to a neighbor's to telephone for the police. Coming to the end of the float, the two men stepped into a small boat and cast off, Merrill handling the oars. The tiny light of a launch could be seen a short distance out in the Sound bobbing slightly in the swell. The oarsman had not taken five strokes, however, before he stopped and uttered a mild imprecation.

"That dog-eared dog!" he exclaimed, peering over his shoulder.
"Hear him? Hear the racket he's making?"

"I thought perhaps you had a small auxiliary engine up there in front—"

"Not a bit of it. It's Bugle's tail.
Stop that, Bugle! Do you hear me, sir? Cut it out! You see, Mr. Carrington, on hot nights he comes down here and sleeps in this boat.
He's a regular sea dog. Loves life on the ocean wave and all that sort of thing. He'd sing it if he could, wouldn't you, Bugle?"

Bugle rapped twice with his tail.
"He raps three times when he wants to say No," explained his master.

"What does he do when he doesn't want to commit himself?"
inquired Bing, who was feeling very bland by this time.

"Simply holds his tail, that's all.
But we can't have him along with us now. Get out, Bugle! Down with you. Go home!"

Bugle ignored the command. He refused to move anything but his tail. Mr. Merrill resumed his rowing.

"Oh, well—all right," he muttered. Now to his passenger: "Bob will find this boat you're talking about—the Filomena, did you say?
And he'll make short work of the darned pirates. If they run for it, he'll put a couple of one-pounders into 'em, and sink 'em."

"Good Lord! He mustn't do that.
He mustn't sink Aunt Celimena."

"I thought you said her name was Filomena."

"She isn't boat. She's Connie's aunt. She's a lady."
